

Hello. The idea that I was trying to go for here without getting too detailed is that first, the customer enters their info or retrieves it from when they've purchased here before. Afterwards, they can enter the Tickets they want to purchase in their Ticket Orders.

The ticket Orders can inherit the Ticket ID. Ticket Orders can have multiple tickets, but there can only be one film, on one date at at one time for one person each ticket. There can be many tickets in a Ticket Order. One to Many relationship.

The customer can purchase concessions from the concession stand. Concession Items is the table for the concession inventory. Each concession can be put into a Concession Purchase (cart) for purchase.

The Films Table is an inventory of what films are at the theater and which films are at which showing and theater numbers, as well as their availability and times.
